As much as I hate that the experience of child loss is so common, I am also thankful for the companionship and community I've found with fellow bereaved parents like you.

hankyon for being one of the good parts of my new world.